Earliest Settlers

The young George Washington surveyed land for Thomas Fairfax between 1748 and 1751. The diary kept by Washington recorded that there were already many squatters, largely of German origin, along the South Branch Potomac River, presumably having migrated south from Pennsylvania.